Exploration, Site investigation and Monitoring - Recent Developments Techniques, Data Collection and Presentation - 21st June 2017

Following the successful 1 Day Technical Meetings on Rockfall in 2013 and on Surface water, Groundwater and Flooding in 2015, the EIG intra-year meetings continue in 2017. This years meeting, which will be a CPD day, will be held in the Stratford Manor Hotel on the Warwick-Stratford Road just south of the M40 Junction 15, the same venue as 2015.

This Year's Topic

Having previously held meetings on geotechnical and hydrogeological topics, it was appropriate to consider aspects relating to the recovery and dissemination of data from exploration investigations in the extractive sector. This is a meeting that should appeal to many geoscientists in mining and quarrying and other interested professionals.

An experienced team of speakers will cover topics ranging from safe working practices, organising geological investigations of sites, the use of techniques such as geostatistics in planning these operations and various exploration investigation methods. Case histories will be included relating to sampling, general investigations and drilling work. The emphasis will be on UK operations. As previously adequate time will be allocated for question and answer sessions and for discussions.

Arrangements

The event has been designed around an anticipated attendance of 90 to 100, similar to the number attending in 2015. The cost will be £90 per person including lunch and refreshments.

Many thanks to the major sponsors of the EIG Conference 2016
